It is now feared that the Himalayan glaciers are rapidly retreating because of climate change. Since the mid-1970s, the average air temperature has risen by 1°C in the Himalayan region, and this trend has been most remarkable at high altitude sites. Almost 67% of the glaciers in the Himalayan and Tianshan mountain ranges have retreated in the past decade. One of the major impacts of this trend is related to _____. The melting of the snow will turn the snow-covered mountains, which have a truly magnificent appearance, into bare, rocky mountains. The dynamic glaciers will turn into lifeless rubble without their icy core. The Himalayas will no longer be such a splendid sight.

- ① lifestyle changes in the region
- ② the rapid expansion of glacial lakes
- ③ speeding up the global warming process
- ④ the visual damage of the mountains

Lateralization is a developmental process during which the two sides of the brain become specialized for different functions. ① As a child develops, the two sides of the brain become asymmetric in that each side controls different abilities. ② Language, for instance, is controlled by the left side of the brain, and certain types of pattern recognition by the right. ③ It is also a system of conventional vocal signs by means of which human beings communicate. ④ However, there is some disagreement as to when this specialization is complete. Some researchers believe the process is not complete until puberty, while others maintain that the brain is lateralized by age five.

The discovery of gold in California in 1848 marked the beginning of an economic boom known as the California Gold Rush. The miners, many of whom were originally journalists, lawyers, and businessmen, preserved their experiences in writing. Much of this was peppered with colorful phrases related to their new work. Interestingly, many of these phrases are still in use today in the English language. The popular phrase “pan out,” meaning “to be successful,” can be traced back to the gold rush. Miners would separate gold from worthless minerals using a pan; gold would settle to the bottom of the pan, and other sediments would be removed. The likely origin of “pan out,” then, is from the process of gathering all the gold in one's pan.

18. 첫 단락의 내용과 가장 일치하는 것은?

- ① Introducing new phrases into English was the goal of the writers.
- ② Not all of the Gold Rush miners could read or write.
- ③ The miners wrote about their gold-mining experiences.
- ④ Miners preferred their lives as journalists, lawyers, and businessmen.

19. “pan out”이란 표현의 유래를 가장 적절하게 설명한 것은?

- ① Miners called their findings “pans.”
- ② Miners used pans to separate gold from worthless minerals.
- ③ Gold was found in places called pans.
- ④ Miners called selling gold “panning.”

Smallpox was the first widespread disease to be eliminated by human intervention. In May, 1966, the World Health Organization (WHO), an agency of the United Nations, was authorized to initiate a global campaign to eradicate smallpox. The goal was to eliminate the disease in one decade. At the time, the disease posed a serious threat to people in more than thirty nations. Because similar projects for malaria and yellow fever had failed, few believed that smallpox could actually be eradicated, but eleven years after the initial organization of the campaign, no cases were reported in the field. The strategy was not only to provide mass vaccinations but also to isolate patients with active smallpox in order to break the chain of human transmission. Rewards for reporting smallpox assisted in motivating the public to aid health workers. One by one, each smallpox victim was sought out, removed from contact with others, and treated. At the same time, the entire village where the victim had lived was vaccinated.
